Good Morning Cathryn

Sorry for the delay in replying to your email – I was initially on leave and then had to check the situation with a colleague before replying.

The situation is that a review of perceived 'redundant' sites owned by ECC was undertaken to assess their suitability for use as a traveller transit site.

The whole point of this appraisal was to identify, any known circumstances (such as the restoration of Shalford) that would have to be considered before taking any site further for planning and/or development.

I obviously provided details of ECC's undertaking to restore the site and that it was at an advanced planning stage. This will be taken into account at the next stage of the review but for the time being I am pressing ahead with the restoration plans and hope to have planning approval very soon.

On a slightly different issue a planning application has just been submitted for the regularisation of the landfill gas flare at the site (it never had planning permission) and for the installation of a landfill gas to electricity generator in the same compound. I would like to stress that this application will not change current restoration plans and has no connection with the site appraisal mentioned above.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

Regards

Andrew
